To Whom It May Concern:

This letter is written on behalf of National Construction Incorporated of Alamogordo, NM.

The New Mexico School for the Blind and Visually Impaired (NMSBVI) has done business with National Construction for more than twenty-five years. Our most recent project with National Construction was a Campus-Wide Deficiencies Correction Project that consisted of minor to major renovations of eight buildings on the Alamogordo campus.

NMSBVI has worked with many contractors in the past, and it has been our experience with all construction projects that there are almost always causes for delays and/or additional construction costs. Design corrections, owner changes, additional scope of work introduced, material delays (to name a few) are almost inevitable. Although workmanship is of great importance, how a contractor handles issues and setbacks that may arise during a construction project are just as equally important and highly valued at NMSBVI.

National Construction, and the principals representing this company, have always surpassed the expectations of NMSBVI and have been above standards in their professionalism, integrity, dependability, accountability and work ethics.

NMSBVI values the business relationship established with Harris and Jason Blankenship and always welcomes their continued interest in bidding for any construction project at NMSBVI.

Sincerely,

Margie Macias
Director of Institutional Support Services
